The Company, as part of its compliance with the rules of automated exchange of information in the tax sector, as arising from the country's international obligations, ratified by the Greek law, may proceed in the dispatch of my personal data to the competent national authorities, in order to be forwarded to the corresponding authorities of third countries.

The Company, as a result of its cooperation with re-insurance companies of a third country may, pursuant to the provisions of Articles 44 of GDPR/EU 679/2016, proceed in the dispatch of data of the insurance recipient/person insured beyond Greece and/or European Union.

8. Automated data processing

The Company may perform data processing acts, with the support of automated processes that aim at the risk assessment and decision-making by the Company over the insurance requested.

Specifically:

- a) The above automated processes, which include (for example the use of an algorithm) allow the Company to assess to risk assumed in order to determine i) whether the insurance request becomes accepted or rejected, ii) in case of acceptance, the appropriate and corresponding premium and any special terms under which the program desired may be concluded.
- b) The automated processes applied by the Company are based on mathematical/statistic analyzes of crucial parameters from the insurance technique point of view, that make the objective risk assessment and its integration to an homogenous group of risks possible based on the frequency and intensity of damages that may cause, as well as its proper pricing (for example history of damages caused by the person insured, categorization in an appropriate risk scale).
- c) In case of rejection of the subject's request or in case of expression of objections on its behalf or in case of challenge of any element of the result arising through the process to be followed, the subject may be opposed –requesting a control of the result or element by the competent Company department (Issuance department +30 213 0904320). You may also contact the Company for the provision of clarifications/explanations or the expression of your opinion over the result.).

Furthermore, the Company may use automated processes throughout the insurance policy, in order to conduct controls for purposes of money laundering, prevention of insurance fraud and compliance of the Company with the overall legislation on automatic exchange of information related to financial accounts.

As the data subject, you maintain all the rights provided by the Regulation 679/2016 EU, as well as the other Regulations and Laws that may be in force for the protection of the individual from personal data processing.
